ICG Lifetime Award Nominations Open

Nominations for ICG's Lifetime Achievement Award (LAA) are now open. The LAA is the highest honor that the ICG pays to a costumer. It has been presented since 1990 to recognize a body of achievement in the costuming art and service to the costuming community. Visit the LAA page at <http://www.costume.org/lifetime> to see past recipients.

Candidates for the LAA should:

- Have been active in the costuming community for at least ten years.
- Have achieved significant recognition for their costuming skills, which may be in the form of, but not restricted to, competitive awards, professional accomplishments, teaching of skills, and/or media recognition.
- Have made significant contributions in service to the costuming community.

Candidates may be nominated by any member in good standing, or by any chapter. Nominations should be submitted to me by email at "icg-president@costume.org" no later March 10th 2013. I will send a secret ballot of candidates and "No Award," to all chapter presidents and ICG officers. The voting deadline is April 15th 2013. A majority of votes determines the winner.

The award will be presented at Costume-Con 31 on Saturday, May 18th 2013.

Here are a few tips for preparing an effective nomination:

- Keep in mind that not all chapter presidents and officers will be familiar with the person who you are nominating.
- Nominations should give those who vote a good understanding of your nominee's qualifications and accomplishments.

--Start with a one or two paragraph "executive summary" of the nominee's costuming career that addresses all the qualifications for the award. This is your best opportunity to make the case for the your nominee, so spend some quality time with this.

--Follow that with a list of notable accomplishments that support what you said in your opening paragraph. A few well-chosen examples are often enough to do this.

--If you are describing costuming skills, you can include a couple of URLs to photos in the ICG's International Costumers' Gallery or other photo sites as examples.

The recipient's citation will be prepared from your nomination.

Please make sure that your nomination arrives before midnight on March 10th. I will send an acknowledgement of all nominations within 24 hours. If you do not receive an acknowledgement, please contact me again to make sure that I received it. Allow for this when submitting your nomination.

Preparing a good nominate takes some time, so I want to thank those who submit one for your efforts on behalf of a fellow costumer who you think deserves this special recognition.

--Philip Gust, President, International Costumers' Guild

Sewing Machine Looking for a Good Home

Paula contacted your editor yesterday to tell us about a friend who is looking for someone who will get good use out of a sewing machine. Paula did not know the specific details about the make and model, but indicated the machine is in good condition, comes with many accessories and is being offered for free. Give Paula a call on her cell at 602.790.7881 (evenings) if you are interested.

Fezzes are Cool!

by Randall Whitlock

Reprinted from October 2010 Cactus Needles. Get ready for our Feb 24, 2013 fez workshop.

It's official. Fezzes are cool. The Doctor said so in this year's season finale of "Dr. Who." Of course the likes of Sydney Greenstreet, Aladdin and Morocco Mole already knew.

A fez is a simple flat-crowned cap in the shape of a truncated cone. They are a part of men's costume in many parts of the middle east and Indonesia. The name comes from the city of Fez in Morocco.

Surrounded by a turban in times past (as seen in Mike Contos' photo of me below), fezzes are more often worn by themselves in modern styles of dress. The most popular colors worldwide are red, black and white.

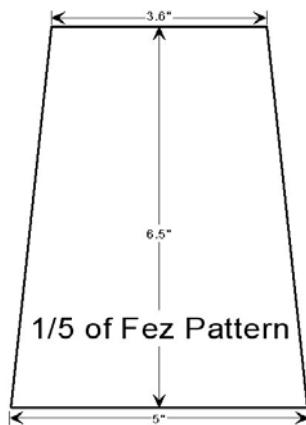

Fezzes as modeled by Mike (right) are becoming popular as novelty headgear in fannish circles. Fez-O-Rama (<http://www.fez-o-rama.com/>) offers a variety of velvet caps embroidered with geekish motifs like robots, skulls, atomic orbitals and the TARDIS. Mike has modified some of these by making his own top decorations to replace the tassel. I particularly like his robot antenna.

Historically, fezzes have been made by forming felt around a block. While effective, this method can be difficult for the home stitcher. I prefer to make fezzes from flat fabric.

The “Middish Posh Hennin” we’ve built at past SWCG workshops has proportions similar to a fez, so I used its top panel as a starting point. This is a circle 5.75 inches in diameter. Multiply by pi to find the circumference of 18 inches.

Find your hat size by measuring the circumference of your head above the eyebrows. Add a bit for seam allowance and wearing ease. For me, my 23.5-inch measurement was fudged up to 25 inches.

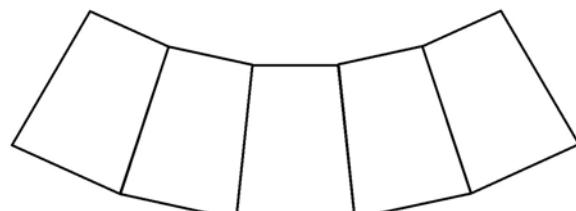

By a bit of trial and error I came to the conclusion that a cap height of 6 to 6.5 inches looks right for most adults.

To create a cone segment, you would scribe a small segment of a solid circle whose upper arc is 18 inches, lower arc is 25 inches and the difference between the radii is 6.5 inches. This math is a bit too complicated for me, so I worked out a compromise construction, previously used in my boot cuff pattern.

Draw an isosceles trapezoid that is 6.5 inches high, 5 inches at its base (1/5 of your forehead), and 3.6 inches across its top (1/5 of the crown circumference). This is really easy on most graphics software and not at all hard to do with a ruler and pencil. Cut out this shape and trace it onto larger paper five times, matched long edge to long edge. This pattern nicely approximates the two curves described above.

Lay your side panel out on your fabric and cut around the edges. Fold it over right sides together and sew the side seam shut. Cut a 5.75-inch solid circle of the same fabric. Pin and sew the circle to the open top of the hat. Turn the hat shell rightside out.

Cut and sew a second cap from your lining material and insert it into the shell, wrong sides together. Sew the shell to the lining around the bottom edge. Finish this edge by turning under and sewing, or by applying grosgrain ribbon or another trim.

The best fabrics for fezzes have interesting textures, no stretch, and are thick or stiff enough to support themselves. Felts, upholstery velvets and heavy corduroys are suitable. Thinner fabrics may be used if you provide some support from within. Fez-O-Rama uses quilted materials for linings. You might also cut a side panel piece from leather, felt, buckram or pasteboard and insert it between the shell and lining.

A traditional fez is topped with a tassel. Suitable tassels can be purchased at any upholstery department, or you can make your own.

I make tassels by wrapping some yarn around my hand at the base of the fingers, about 15 times. I then tie off the tassel with additional yarn about one inch from the end of the bundle. Once the bundle is tied off, I trim the opposite end and insert a bit more yarn through the loop formed between the knot and the end.

This bit of yarn is attached to the crown of the cap so that the tassel hangs down one side. There are many ways to accomplish this. You could mount a grommet in the middle of the crown or simply sew the yarn to the cap's exterior. I usually poke the yarn through the cap crown with a pointy pair of pliers and tie a knot inside the hat.

Tiny car for driving in parades is optional.

Add a circular or elliptical brim and this pattern becomes an Elizabethan tall hat, but that is a completely different article.
